Gauge Conversion of Historic Rail

Shri Vaishnav noted that the Indara–Dohrihat metre gauge line was built in 1904, over 100 years ago but that its gauge conversion had to wait until Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi took office. He said that after 2014, many long-pending railway projects across the country were taken up, including gauge conversion works, doubling works, and several incomplete projects. The Indara-Dohrihat line was converted to broad gauge, bringing new rail facilities to eastern Uttar Pradesh. The Railway Minister stated that Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi had flagged off train services on this newly converted line in December 2023.

Railway Investment in Uttar Pradesh Multiplied

The Union Minister highlighted that the railway budget allocation for Uttar Pradesh in 2014 stood at merely ₹1,109 crore. After 2014, the allocation had grown to approximately ₹20,012 crore. He added that railway projects worth around ₹1.2 lakh crore are currently underway across Uttar Pradesh, a scale of railway development unprecedented in the state's history.

Key Infrastructure Projects Underway

Shri Vaishnav outlined a series of major railway infrastructure projects progressing in Uttar Pradesh. He said that south of the Ganga, a major four-line corridor had been developed along the Prayagraj–Kanpur–Agra–Delhi route. Similarly, a massive four-line railway corridor is being developed north of the Ganga, connecting Delhi via Ghaziabad, Moradabad, Bareilly, Sitapur, Gonda and Gorakhpur towards Bihar and the Northeast.

The Minister listed the following new line and doubling projects currently in progress in the region:

Chitauni–Tamkuhi Road new line; Anand Nagar–Ghughli new line; Sahjanwa–Dohrighat new line; Bahraich–Khalilabad New Line; Gorakhpur–Valmiki Nagar doubling; Burhwal–Gonda third line; Katra–Ayodhya doubling; Aunrihar–Varanasi 3rd Line; Mathura–Jhansi third line; Agra Fort–Bandikui doubling; Chopan–Chunar doubling; and Prayagraj–Manikpur third line.

Shri Vaishnaw also informed that the old Malviya Bridge at Varanasi is ageing, and therefore a new bridge is being constructed alongside it, carrying four railway lines on the lower deck and a six-lane highway above. The under-construction bridge is located near Namo Ghat over the Ganga. Shri Vaishnaw said these projects would completely transform Uttar Pradesh's railway map and enable the operation of at least 500 new trains in the future.

Amrit Bharat Stations

The Union Minister said 157 Amrit Bharat stations are being developed in Uttar Pradesh, with work already completed at 28 stations. In the Purvanchal region, redevelopment work is underway at Mau, Ghazipur City and Dildarnagar stations.

Shri Vaishnaw said that around 58 new train services have started in Uttar Pradesh after COVID and 568 services have been extended. He noted that 40 Amrit Bharat Express services and 32 Vande Bharat services are currently operating in Uttar Pradesh. The Anand Vihar–Mau train service commenced in February 2021, and in December 2023 new services from Mau towards Mumbai also began.

Underpasses at Three Locations

The Minister also announced that construction of underpasses at locations 14C, 25C and 27C would be taken up at a fast pace. He directed railway officials to complete the work in record time.

Bullet Train for Uttar Pradesh

The Minister said the proposed bullet train network connecting Delhi – Lucknow – Varanasi – Patna – Siliguri would strengthen connectivity with the Ashta Lakshmi states of the Northeast and fulfil the vision of a Viksit Uttar Pradesh and Viksit Bharat. He assured that the bullet train would remain affordable to the middle class and ordinary citizens, and would serve as a strong foundation for a developed India.
